Fryling Continues Work throughout East Lansing

East Lansing, MI (May 12, 2008) – Fryling Construction has been selected as general contractor for the remodel of an 8,000 square foot office space to be converted into apartments. The building owned by Branoff Investment Group of East Lansing will provide more housing for the growing Michigan State University student population.

Formally Woodside Manor, a mixed office and apartment building, will now solely be an apartment complex called Abbott Manor for its location on 910 Abbott Road. Fryling will be renovating the first floor of the building from office space into four new apartments. The current apartments occupying the second and third floor will forgo upgrades to the corridors and stairwells, and the exterior of building will be renovated to a more inviting appearance.

According to project Manager, Bill Carmean, “It is a privilege to be a part of the continuing growth and improvement to the city of East Lansing, and the Abbott Manor project will be a great asset to the community.”
