

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

New Derby-Style Meeting Place for East Grand Rapids.

East Lansing, MI (April 28, 2008) – Fryling Construction will be introducing a new restaurant to Gaslight Village in East Grand Rapids. Graydon's Crossing, a popular pub on the Northeast side of town, will be opening a second restaurant and bar in the style of an old fashioned Derby Station.

Known for their cask conditioned brewed ales and traditional English/India menu, Graydon's Crossing believes it will be a perfect fit for the nostalgic feel of East Grand Rapids. As a design/build project, Fryling Construction is excited to help plan the layout of the Derby-style location. The derby theme comes from the history of the area being a fun attraction in the early 1900's. Reeds Lake was a popular entertainment spot including a railway, ball park, theater, concert venue, many lakeside resorts, and even a small amusement park with a roller-coaster named the Jack Rabbit Derby Racer. The Gaslight Village still resonates the fun atmosphere today as it welcomes Graydon's Crossing Derby Station this summer. The build-out project is a fast-track job that is set to be complete by this June.
